Email Deleting Parties and More: Training with a Twist

How do you avoid another dry, droning training session? How do you ensure trainees feel comfortable applying what you've taught? Join Emily Lemieux from Records Management Services at the University of Washington to learn about their innovative outreach program. Their fresh approach including Email Deleting Parties, online trainings, interactive events, and in-person consults has inspired compliance all over the University of Washington.

Speaker:

Emily Lemieux, Assistant Director of Records Management at the University of Washington (UW), works to inspire legal compliance with Washington's public records laws across the UW by helping offices with onboarding, offboarding, creating file plans with logical folder structures, setting retention periods on records, and doing hands-on consultations evaluating records messes. She has worked at the UW since 2019, and before that worked in the art world and in museums in New York state.
